

Research Update:

Instituto de Credito Oficial Assigned 'A/A-1' Ratings In Line With Ratings On Spain; Outlook Stable

September 26, 2019

Overview

- We consider Spain's financial agency Instituto de Crédito Oficial (ICO) to be a government-related entity, with an almost certain likelihood of receiving support from the government in case of financial distress.
- We therefore equalize our long-term rating on ICO with that on Spain.
- We are assigning our 'A/A-1' long- and short-term ratings on ICO.
- The stable outlook mirrors that on Spain.

Rating Action

On Sept. 26, 2019, S&P Global Ratings assigned its 'A/A-1' long- and short-term issuer credit ratings to Spanish state-owned financial agency Instituto de Crédito Oficial (ICO). The outlook is stable.

Rationale

The rating reflects that we equalize our long-term rating on ICO with that on Spain (unsolicited A/Stable/A-1), given our opinion that there is an almost certain likelihood that the Spanish government would provide timely and sufficient extraordinary support to ICO in the event of financial distress.

We consider ICO to be a government-related entity. Our expectation of ICO receiving sufficient and timely government support stems from our view of its:

- Integral link with the Spanish government. Endowed with a special public status, ICO functions, in our view, as the central government's financial arm, and is fully owned and controlled by it. In turn, the government has historically granted ICO strong support in the form of a wide direct, irrevocable, and unconditional guarantee covering all of ICO's debt; and
- Critical role as an entity created especially to carry out key financial aspects of national economic policies on behalf of the Spanish government.

PRIMARY CREDIT ANALYST

Ines Olondriz
Madrid
(34) 91-788-7202
ines.olondriz
@spglobal.com

SECONDARY CONTACTS

Joe I Fernandez
New York
(1) 212-438-4462
joe.fernandez
@spglobal.com

Miriam Fernandez, CFA
Madrid
(34) 91-788-7232
Miriam.Fernandez
@spglobal.com

ADDITIONAL CONTACT

EMEA Sovereign and IPF
SovereignIPF
@spglobal.com

The government mandates that ICO provide financial backing for small and midsize enterprises (SMEs). To this end, ICO channels loans (mediation loans) to the Spanish banking system, which then lends these funds to SMEs. Each bank absorbs the credit risk linked to the final SME loan. ICO also offers long-term lending to companies operating in sectors of national interest and manages financial instruments linked to export promotion, as well as concessionary lending programs for developing countries on the government's behalf.

ICO would also be mandated to grant financial support if it became necessary in the event of natural disasters or economic crises.

ICO's role was reinforced in 2012, when Spain's central government set up mechanisms to support the liquidity of local and regional governments. In this regard, ICO plays a key role as a payment agent of the regional governments' financing fund, which covers regional debt maturities and budgetary deficits. As of June 30, 2019, ICO managed financing funds worth €193 billion on behalf of the state (but off ICO's balance sheet), of which €179 billion corresponds to the regional financing fund. We believe ICO has a competitive advantage compared with private entities in terms of managing these funds because of its relationship with the central government.

ICO's balance sheet has continued to shrink, reaching €36 billion in December 2018 from a peak of €115 billion in 2012. The decline reflects ICO's countercyclical role, expanding credit concession during the height of Spain's economic crisis, and returning to previous levels as credit conditions improved. We think ICO's balance sheet size is close to the historical minimum as the economy starts to decelerate. In our view, ICO is following this policy in order to be ready for any potential future economic shocks.

ICO's nonperforming loan (NPL) ratios have moderated to about 6.3% as of Dec. 30, 2018 from 9% in 2017. ICO's coverage ratios remain comfortably above 100% of NPLs, which may lead to some future upside to its accounts if recoveries exceed expectations.

In contrast with commercial banks, ICO's strategy is not to maximize profit, but to fulfill its public service mandate. Consequently, its profitability remains low, although positive. In 2018, ICO posted pre-tax profits of €113 million compared with €146 million the year before. These results were largely driven by the release of credit provisions, owing to the bank's conservative risk management culture that led it to overprovision in previous years. On the revenue side, a stable contributor across years have been fee income generated from management of the regional financing fund. ICO's solvency ratio has continued to increase, reaching 40.5% at year-end 2018 from 32.9% in 2017.

Following legal reforms enacted on Oct. 2, 2015, four independent members (out of 10) were added to ICO's board, following the EU's recommendations on good governance of similar institutions. The four independent members of the board come from the public sector, academia, and some of Spain's largest credit institutions. In our view, their participation on the board may help strengthen internal lending practices and decision-making procedures without compromising the central government's ability to control ICO and direct its strategy.

Outlook

The stable outlook on ICO mirrors that on Spain.

If we raised our rating on Spain, we would likely take the same action on ICO, assuming we continued to have the same opinion of ICO's critical role for and integral link with Spain's government.

If we lowered our rating on Spain, we would lower our rating on ICO. We could also lower the rating on ICO if we assessed that its role for and link with the Spanish government and, in turn, the likelihood of central government support, had weakened, indicating a lower likelihood of extraordinary government support. This could be the case if the central government were to change ICO's special public status, withdraw capital from ICO, or stop guaranteeing its debt. We see this scenario as very remote.

Related Criteria

- General Criteria: Methodology For Linking Long-Term And Short-Term Ratings, April 7, 2017
- General Criteria: Rating Government-Related Entities: Methodology And Assumptions, March 25, 2015
- General Criteria: Principles For Rating Debt Issues Based On Imputed Promises, Dec. 19, 2014
- General Criteria: Use Of CreditWatch And Outlooks, Sept. 14, 2009

Related Research

- Sovereign Risk Indicators, July 11, 2019. An interactive version is also available at <http://www.spratings.com/sri>
- Spain Ratings Raised To 'A/A-1' From 'A-/A-2' On Economic Resilience; Outlook Stable, Sept. 20, 2019

Ratings List

New Rating

Instituto de Credito Oficial

Issuer Credit Rating A/Stable/A-1

Certain terms used in this report, particularly certain adjectives used to express our view on rating relevant factors, have specific meanings ascribed to them in our criteria, and should therefore be read in conjunction with such criteria. Please see Ratings Criteria at www.standardandpoors.com for further information. Complete ratings information is available to subscribers of RatingsDirect at www.capitaliq.com. All ratings affected by this rating action can be found on S&P Global Ratings' public website at www.standardandpoors.com. Use the Ratings search box located in the left column. Alternatively, call one of the following S&P Global Ratings numbers: Client Support Europe (44) 20-7176-7176; London Press Office (44) 20-7176-3605; Paris (33) 1-4420-6708; Frankfurt (49) 69-33-999-225; Stockholm (46) 8-440-5914; or Moscow 7 (495) 783-4009.

Copyright © 2019 by Standard & Poor's Financial Services LLC. All rights reserved.

No content (including ratings, credit-related analyses and data, valuations, model, software or other application or output therefrom) or any part thereof (Content) may be modified, reverse engineered, reproduced or distributed in any form by any means, or stored in a database or retrieval system, without the prior written permission of Standard & Poor's Financial Services LLC or its affiliates (collectively, S&P). The Content shall not be used for any unlawful or unauthorized purposes. S&P and any third-party providers, as well as their directors, officers, shareholders, employees or agents (collectively S&P Parties) do not guarantee the accuracy, completeness, timeliness or availability of the Content. S&P Parties are not responsible for any errors or omissions (negligent or otherwise), regardless of the cause, for the results obtained from the use of the Content, or for the security or maintenance of any data input by the user. The Content is provided on an "as is" basis. S&P PARTIES DISCLAIM ANY AND ALL EXPRESS OR IMPLIED WARRANTIES, INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, ANY WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE OR USE, FREEDOM FROM BUGS, SOFTWARE ERRORS OR DEFECTS, THAT THE CONTENT'S FUNCTIONING WILL BE UNINTERRUPTED OR THAT THE CONTENT WILL OPERATE WITH ANY SOFTWARE OR HARDWARE CONFIGURATION. In no event shall S&P Parties be liable to any party for any direct, indirect, incidental, exemplary, compensatory, punitive, special or consequential damages, costs, expenses, legal fees, or losses (including, without limitation, lost income or lost profits and opportunity costs or losses caused by negligence) in connection with any use of the Content even if advised of the possibility of such damages.

Credit-related and other analyses, including ratings, and statements in the Content are statements of opinion as of the date they are expressed and not statements of fact. S&P's opinions, analyses and rating acknowledgment decisions (described below) are not recommendations to purchase, hold, or sell any securities or to make any investment decisions, and do not address the suitability of any security. S&P assumes no obligation to update the Content following publication in any form or format. The Content should not be relied on and is not a substitute for the skill, judgment and experience of the user, its management, employees, advisors and/or clients when making investment and other business decisions. S&P does not act as a fiduciary or an investment advisor except where registered as such. While S&P has obtained information from sources it believes to be reliable, S&P does not perform an audit and undertakes no duty of due diligence or independent verification of any information it receives. Rating-related publications may be published for a variety of reasons that are not necessarily dependent on action by rating committees, including, but not limited to, the publication of a periodic update on a credit rating and related analyses.

To the extent that regulatory authorities allow a rating agency to acknowledge in one jurisdiction a rating issued in another jurisdiction for certain regulatory purposes, S&P reserves the right to assign, withdraw or suspend such acknowledgment at any time and in its sole discretion. S&P Parties disclaim any duty whatsoever arising out of the assignment, withdrawal or suspension of an acknowledgment as well as any liability for any damage alleged to have been suffered on account thereof.

S&P keeps certain activities of its business units separate from each other in order to preserve the independence and objectivity of their respective activities. As a result, certain business units of S&P may have information that is not available to other S&P business units. S&P has established policies and procedures to maintain the confidentiality of certain non-public information received in connection with each analytical process.

S&P may receive compensation for its ratings and certain analyses, normally from issuers or underwriters of securities or from obligors. S&P reserves the right to disseminate its opinions and analyses. S&P's public ratings and analyses are made available on its Web sites, www.standardandpoors.com (free of charge), and www.ratingsdirect.com (subscription), and may be distributed through other means, including via S&P publications and third-party redistributors. Additional information about our ratings fees is available at www.standardandpoors.com/usratingsfees.

STANDARD & POOR'S, S&P and RATINGSDIRECT are registered trademarks of Standard & Poor's Financial Services LLC.